A watercolor chart is a grid of colored squares using all or some of the paints in your palette. The grid is labeled on the top and side axis with the names of all your paints. Each square in the chart is at the intersection of a row and a column of the chart. You fill in each of the colored squares on your grid by mixing the color on the side axis with the color on the top axis. For example ...

By Carrie Lewis in Art Business Advice > Selling Art Online. A lot of artists I speak with are uncertain about whether or not their images are safe online—and truthfully, it's a valid concern. However, there are a few ways you can protect your images (and your copyright) if you decide to put your artwork photos on the internet. Here are 8 of the most common ways to prevent image theft online:
